SPACES

Where Childhood Happens

Childhood is shaped not just by people,
but by places.

This book invites you to notice the corners, open playgrounds, fields, and rooms where childhood unfolds. Some of these spaces are built with intention. Others are claimed, repurposed, or carved out by children and caregivers alike.

Through these images, we explore how spaces hold memory, possibility, and care, and how they shape the way children grow, move, and dream.

What if we saw childhood not just inside homes and schools, but in courtyards, verandahs, and every corner where children gather?
